Hello, hello. Granite City?

Telephone links candidate Simon to area mayors

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — "Do we have Davenport? Hello — Do we have Granite City? ... Are you there, Von Dee?" came the monotone, deep voice from a black box.

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, held a teleconference question-and-answer telephone session with area mayors and reporters on Tuesday at City Hall.

The call was part of a "mayors for Simon" session where five cities — Granite City, Carbondale, Chicago, Springfield and Davenport, Iowa — were linked simultaneously by phone and area mayors expressed their support for Simon's presidential bid.

Speaking from Des Moines, Simon commented about his prospects for victory in the Feb. 8 Iowa caucuses and the March 15 primary in Illinois. He said he needed a clear victory in Illinois and a strong showing in Iowa in order for his campaign to move forward.

"Iowa is tight, but I feel pretty good about it. We've got a lot of people from Illinois helping," Simon said.

Simon was asked how he expects to do in Illinois considering the Democratic presidential race also includes Chicagoan Jesse Jackson and St. Louisan Richard Gephardt — both considered strong contenders.

"I don't take anything for granted," Simon said. He said he expected Jackson to carry parts of Chicago in the primary.

"Jesse may have the edge," in Chicago. "It is

VA's investigation of area real estate dealers nearly done

By Jack C. Ventimiglia
Executive editor

GRANITE CITY — Guilty pleas are expected in an ongoing federal investigation involving murdered real estate dealer Carl Hoffman and illegal loan applications for veterans.

"Four or five" Granite City residents are said to have been involved in a scam to obtain Veterans Administration loans. The suspects are employees of area real estate and mortgage companies.

The investigator handling the case for the VA in Kansas City, Mo., Ed Slagle, refused to release suspects' names.

"We're at a stage where certain people are going to start coming in and pleading guilty," Slagle said. The suspects are expected to admit to filing false statements to get VA loans.

A conviction for filing a false statement carries a sentence of up to two years in prison, Slagle said.

Slagle said those convicted could not secure future VA loans and the administration will seek to have their real estate licenses revoked.

"Give me a month and everything will be taken care of," Slagle said.

Karen Dunlap, spokeswoman with the Illinois Department of Professional Regulations, Springfield, said Wednesday that a request from the VA to revoke a real estate license would result in a review.

"Once there's a conviction, the disciplinary commission takes action against the licensee," Dunlap said. "Most often, it does result in a revocation of the license."

In March 1987, Slagle said charges could be filed in two weeks, but he has since explained a major investigation in another part of the country hindered progress on the Granite City case.

The VA has investigated for more than a year. Involved are Hoffman's former real estate company, a mortgage company, a Springfield bank, veterans and veterans' employees.

Slagle said the VA is working on the case with the office of U.S. Attorney Frederick Hess, East St. Louis. An attorney with the office confirmed there was an investigation, but declined to release details.

Hoffman and his wife, Susan, were murdered May 1, 1986, by Jack G. Bruce. County prosecutor Robert Trone said during the trial that Bruce killed the Hoffmans because Bruce gambled away more than $50,000 to Carl Hoffman in poker games. Bruce was convicted of the murders March 19.

State's attorney's wages garnished, then IRS paid

GRANITE CITY — The Internal Revenue Service garnished wages of the state's attorney, Dick Allen's salary Friday, but the county received word from the IRS on Wednesday that Allen has since paid the debt on his 1984 income.

Allen paid the IRS $22,296 in back taxes. Norma Burcham, Collinsville, an employee in the county's payroll office.

Burcham said Allen paid the bill before the county could garnish one of Allen's paychecks.

Allen could not be reached for comment Wednesday afternoon.

A spokesperson for the IRS office in Springfield said Wednesday that garnishment information was confidential and the office could not release details of the case.

Allen told another newspaper earlier this week that he paid back taxes owed since 1984, but not some income reported while he was in private practice in 1984. The money went to pay medical bills from his son's cancer treatment, he said.

Allen took over responsibility for the state's attorney's office in December 1984 and his monthly income from the county was $5,458.

The amount of penalty on the taxes owed was at issue and was being negotiated, Allen had said. Part of the problem that got Allen behind on tax payments apparently involved his son, Michael, 26, who was diagnosed as having melanoma of the leg, which spread to the groin. He underwent surgery and later had chemotherapy.

Medical bills exceeded $20,000 and the insurance company refused to pay them, saying the cancer was a pre-existing condition.

Dick Allen made trips with his son to a Houston medical center and to Mexico for treatment. Some of that treatment also was not covered under insurance, he said.

Dick Allen, 62, is living in the March 15 Democratic Party primary against County Board member Bill Haine, Alton.

Disputed mobile home park OK'd

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — Approval to build a 297-unit mobile home park on Quality Sand property is part of a settlement reached between the company and village officials.

The Board of Trustees accepted the proposal Tuesday. Widening and improving Kaseberg Lane, and constructing a bridge over Long Lake onto Quality Sand property, were part of the settlement.

Quality Sand agreed to provide entrances and exits to the 97-acre mobile home park at Mari-gold Drive, at the new bridge over Pontoon Road, at Illinois 182 and at Reville Lane.

Quiet Valley subdivision resident Judy Merritt was outraged. Her property borders Quality Sand, which is co-owned by Don Peacock.

"Are you going to allow him (Peacock) to put in a mobile home park?" asked Merritt, who was at the meeting with her husband, Jack.

"Yes," Trustee Louis Whitsell replied. "We couldn't beat it. All we could do is negotiate the best thing we could."

An intent-to-sue document was filed Aug. 24 against the village, causing the negotiations.

The settlement states a row of double-wide mobile homes will be situated along the park edge closest to Quiet Valley. Quality

Sand also agreed to plant hardwood trees on the same part of the property.

"Nobody thought we could win this (suit)," Mayor Glen Wilson said.

"The problem is we were stuck with documentation and record keeping from the early 1970s," village Attorney Keith Jensen said.

At a March board meeting, Peacock said the village in 1972 approved 200 mobile homes for the property. He requested a special use permit to add 125 mobile homes, bringing the total to 325.

Petitions signed by 246 residents against the request were

BAC administration to be examined

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

BELLEVILLE — A report will be made in July on the reorganization of Belleville Area College's administration.

Approval to compile the report was given Jan. 20 by BAC's Board of Trustees.

The purpose of the report will be to examine how the administrative staff is organized and how it functions, interim Chancellor B.J. Davis said.

"I think it's a chance for you to look over your organization," Davis told the board. He said the report could take up to six months to complete.

The report was requested by Trustee Ted Farmer, who said he's asking Davis to see if the administrative staff could be "streamlined." Farmer said he doesn't have a "personal vendetta" against any administrator.

"All I'm asking for is an opinion," Farmer said.

"I have a major concern about the financial solvency of this school," Trustee Larry Reinbeck said. "Let's look into a few things."

Trustee Dan Wolford said he doesn't see the purpose of the report as a "witch hunt" against administrators.

The board should devote its efforts to selecting a new chancellor to replace former Chancellor Bruce Wissore, Trustee Robert Dintelmann said.

Wissore was fired in December and given a teaching job at the college. Dintelmann said the report should be done after a new chancellor is hired.

The administration, and how it's organized, has accomplished many things for the college in the past, Dintelmann said.

Voting to authorize the report were Farmer, Reinbeck, Wolford and board President Elizabeth Jenner. Dintelmann, Trustee Kay Bennett and Student Trustee Linda Roy voted against it.

Candidates weigh in on defense spending

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

With thousands of jobs in the 21st Congressional District tied to the nation's defense industry against a backdrop of skyrocketing deficits and calls to cut the budget, defense spending is on the minds of area residents.

Retiring U.S. Rep. Mel Price, D-Belleville, spent his 44 years in Congress acquiring seniority and the chairmanship of the powerful House Armed Services Committee. In part because of Price's chairmanship, many federal defense dollars were brought to the district and Price had a powerful voice in forming the nation's defense posture.

Price's clout will be gone when he retires.

Almost 19,000 district jobs depend on defense installations in the district — Scott Air Force Base near Belleville and the Army's St. Louis Area Support Center in Granite City.

Many other jobs depend on defense contracts linked to area industries, including AEL Industries and Olin Corp. in East Alton, Air Products and Chemicals Inc. in Granite City, and Belleville Shells in Belleville.

It has been estimated that 20 percent of workers at McDonnell Douglas in St. Louis, which employs about 36,000 people, live in the 21st Congressional district.

Defense jobs are vital to the district, but the nation faces a $2.3 trillion deficit this year.

Many Democrats in Congress consider defense spending, a priority of the Reagan administration for the last seven years, too high and want it cut.

The four Democratic Party candidates in the 21st Congressional District generally agree military spending is important to the district and want to keep it, but disagree on how to approach the issue as a congressman.

Candidate Pete Fields, Madison County auditor, said he would not seek a spot on the House's Armed Services Committee. The other Democratic candidates would.

Fields, 42, Glen Carbon, said he would instead vie for a seat on the House Budget Committee. As an auditor, Fields said he would be more effective on that committee, which would review defense budget requests.

"That's my area of expertise," Fields said. "That's where I can make my greatest contribution."

Fields said not being on the Armed Services Committee would not hurt the area's defense industry. He said the old days of making back-room political deals on where to spend defense dollars are nearly gone.

"The integrity of a military base will remain based on its performance," Fields said.

Because U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Belleville, is on the Senate Armed Services Committee, it would be unnecessary for him to sit on the House's version, Fields said.

Fields supports a zero-growth defense spending policy. He said he would be more inclined to support conventional weapons systems than he would nuclear systems. He said defense spending must be prioritized because of budget constraints and that conventional systems should be given priority.

He said he would have opposed the M-X nuclear missile system and the B-1B Bomber. Both were supported by Price and the Reagan administration and both were approved by Congress after long debate.

IN CUSTODY: Venice Police Chief Farris Smith holds one of two suspects arrested yesterday after a high-speed chase that ended on Kennedy Drive, Madison. One suspect was wanted for a rape in north St. Louis County, the other for questioning. Involved in the arrest were State Police, and departments from Madison, Brooklyn, National City, Granite City and Venice. The chase ended when the blue Cadillac being sought blew the rear, right tire. No one was injured.

A year later, cable costlier

WASHINGTON — A federal law deregulating the cable television industry has now been in effect a year, but arguments about the costs and benefits of that move are far from being settled.

Some say programming has improved, allowing cable to better compete for viewers with conventional TV, movies and home videos.

But others, including individual cable subscribers and local governments, say the costs have been too high in many cases, they say, monthly cable bills have gotten too expensive, and the system operators wield vast power over a vital means of communication.

Barry Babcock, executive vice president of Cencom Cable, which provides cable service to Collinsville, Edwardsville, Granite City and St. Louis County, defended deregulation. While rates have gone up, he said, the higher rates are a necessary true market value of the service.

"The result in metro areas is that there's enough competition for the entertainment dollar so that cable TV rates are regulated by the market," Babcock said, "and not by government officials who are necessarily equipped to do so."

The issue hits home for TV watchers nationwide, and Congress has scheduled hearings to air the debate in February.

What count for individual citizens, or their local governments, have over the cable TV industry?

"None whatsoever," says Cynthia Pels, an attorney for the National League of Cities. Since the Cable Communications Act of 1964 took full effect Jan. 1, 1987, cable TV has been completely deregulated. Local governments no longer have the right to limit the size of cable rate increases or to ensure that cable carries a broad spectrum of viewpoints.

The League of Cities supports some form of renewed regulation of the cable television industry.

The Act, reflecting the Reagan administration's drive toward deregulation of private industry, attempted to foster competition among cable companies by removing barriers to rate increases. The act said that if cable systems operators faced "effective" competition from other entertainment sources, local governments would lose the right to keep cable rates in check.

The Federal Communications Commission later said that if homeowners could turn in to three or more conventional TV

Cencom planning to issue notes

Cencom Cable Entertainment Inc. hopes to finance the acquisition of cable-TV systems in Missouri and North Carolina by selling debt securities, according to a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Cencom Entertainment, which operates cable systems in South Carolina and Kentucky, said it plans to raise $100 million by selling about $200 million in senior subordinated notes at a large discount. The notes, due in 1994, will be sold through Kidder, Peabody & Co. Inc. and Goldman Sachs & Co., according to the filing.

Chesterfield, Mo.-based Cencom will then use $70 million of the proceeds to buy the cable-TV systems from four limited partnerships that are now managed by its parent, Cencom Cable Associates Inc. Cencom may use the rest of the proceeds to pay off debt. Cencom's parent has arranged to continue managing the properties after the acquisitions, according to the filing.

The company's Missouri systems will comprise 75 percent of its basic subscribers, which amounted to 129,000 as of Dec. 31.

The Missouri properties are clustered in and around St. Louis County, while the company's properties in North Carolina, South Carolina and Kentucky mostly serve rural areas near small cities, according to the filing.

Formed in 1982, Cencom Associates is the general partner of two partnerships that own cable TV systems in Illinois, Kentucky, Texas and Tennessee.

"We're in a process of readjusting the rates to conform with the value that those services represent," Babcock said. He added that rates for Cencom's 130,000 St. Louis metro area subscribers should stabilize "in another year or so."

Basic service in Illinois costs $13.45, Babcock said, while in Missouri it costs between $15.45 and $18.45. Most additional pay channels, such as Cinemax or HBO, each cost $9.95 extra.

In any case, says National Cable Television Association spokeswoman Lynn McReynolds, "Cable operators have acted very responsibly in keeping their rates competitive."

"I don't feel there is a general consensus in the country that cable rates are way out of line," McReynolds adds. "If you compare cable rates to prices for movie tickets, the price of newspapers and the prices paid for general consumer spending overall, cable rates increase were actually lower than any of those for the last 10 years."

In addition, cable operators have a basic incentive not to raise their rates too much: "People won't subscribe to the service when the price is too high," McReynolds says. "We're not telephone service. We're not heat. We're not an essential service."

The League of Cities successfully challenged the FCC's "effective competition" ruling in a Washington district court, and the FCC is reviewing the conditions under which local governments should be allowed to regulate cable rates.

Partney promises political pyrotechnics at trial
 GRANITE CITY — Political pyrotechnics are promised at the March 7 trial of 4th Ward Alderman Dan Partney and two police sergeants.

Partney said Friday he wants an immediate trial and will use it as a forum to show "... how certain people in politics play politics in Madison County."

The Madison County grand jury on Thursday indicted Partney and

Sgt. James Reader and David Rosenberg for allegedly cheating on a test in July 1985 that helped get the sergeants promoted from patrolmen. The trio is charged with official misconduct and is free on $2 home recognizance bonds paid Friday.

Partney on Friday demanded personal protection by State's Attorney Dick Allen, who has never prosecuted a case.

Consolidation of churches and schools to be topic
 GRANITE CITY — Consolidation of area Catholic schools and churches will be discussed at a town hall-style meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Heart-St. Joseph School, 2401 Sheridan Ave.

Financial concerns and dwindling population could prompt the consolidation of schools and parishes serving Granite City, Venice and Madison.

Fireman-paramedic plan draws fire from aldermen
 GRANITE CITY — A proposal to eventually make all city firemen paramedics is facing opposition.

The proposal, recommended by 6th Ward Alderwoman Judy Whitaker, chairwoman of the City Council's Fire, Water and Ambulance Committee, would require all new fire department employees to be qualified paramedics within three years of being hired.

The plan would cost the city about $9,000 to train a new fireman as a paramedic.

Wolf lists 'significant' laws effective on Jan. 1

The following is a listing of new laws considered "significant" by Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City. The legislation took effect Jan. 1.

Children: There are several new laws now in effect that deal with child care centers and the prevention of child abuse.

House Bill 976 provides that nonprofit day care centers licensed by the state shall be exempt from sales taxes on their purchases of tangible goods necessary to their operation. Typically, these are day care centers operated by churches and other nonprofit educational institutions.

Child care facilities now are required to have a person on the premises, at all times, who is certified in first aid, CPR and the Heimlich maneuver. Also, firearms are now prohibited at day care centers.

The 85th General Assembly passed laws to help curb sexual abuse of children. Videotaped testimony is now permitted if the sex abuse victim is under the age of 12. A judge, in a sex offense case, can now clear the courtroom when a minor is testifying. And some hearsay evidence is now allowed in court.

Consumers: Several consumer rights bills became law. Because advances in technology and new automatic checkout systems that many merchants use, consumers complained that prices were not clearly marked on shelves. House Bill 1341 requires retailers to clearly mark the price of a product on store shelves.

Another new consumer law will allow the financially strained Citizens Utility Board to improve its ability to contact prospective and existing members. CUB now has the right to include ICC-approved informational materials related to membership recruitment and fund-raising with state agency mailings given to 50,000 or more persons. CUB will reimburse the agency for any additional costs resulting from the enclosures.

CUB needs this provision, Wolf said, due to a federal court decision, ruling invalid a state law allowing CUB to include messages with public utility customer bills. The loss caused the organization membership to decline. The new law, the CUB feels, should improve its ability to attract members and obtain funding to continue its fight for lower utility costs in Illinois.

Another law requires a notice be given to a co-signer of a loan if that loan goes into default. The notice will be given before adverse credit information is reported on the co-signer.

Education: House Bill 1120 allows school boards to initiate a criminal background check on substitute teachers in their district before they can teach in public schools.

Educational information on the prevention, transmission and spread of AIDS must now be taught in public school grades 6 through 12. Students may be exempted from participation, without penalty, if a parent submits written objection. AIDS instruction must also be provided in any comprehensive sex education or family life course.

Another new education law encourages the teaching of sexual abstinence until marriage. The State Board of Education is now required to develop alternate education programs to allow teen parents to complete their studies and graduate.

Employment/labor: Labor contracts must be fulfilled even when a company is sold during the contract, according to "Successor Clause" legislation that is now law. It is intended to provide stability to workers during ownership changes.

House Bill 1780 provides "whistle blower protection" for state employees. This law prevents retaliation against state employees who report wrongdoing, violations or misuse of state funds.

It can be seen as consumer protection legislation because it encourages state employees to report any misuses of taxpayers' money, Wolf said.

Pensions: Senate Bill 236 makes numerous benefit improvements and technical changes in the pension funds of the downstate police, downstate fire fireman, and Illinois municipal retirement funds.

The changes represent packages that were negotiated between labor and management. These groups were brought together to negotiate under the direction of the leadership of the House of Representatives and mediated by Wolf and Rep. Salsman. This bill will take effect July 1, 1988, but the provisions are retroactive to either Jan. 1, 1988, or July 1, 1987.

Seniors: Several bills were considered regarding the safety and well-being of senior citizens. Compensation must now be paid when a crime is committed against a senior.

Also, it is now "aggravated assault" to knowingly assault a physically handicapped person over the age of 60.

The Department on Aging and any other appropriate state, local or federal agency can now establish a nursing home prescreening program to determine whether victims of Alzheimer's disease or related disorders may be satisfactorily cared for in their homes through the use of home- and community-based services.

The department may charge a fee for the prescreening, but the fee can be no greater than the cost of such services to the department.

More auxiliary police sought

An expanded auxiliary police force is being sought by Granite City's Emergency Services and Disaster Agency (Civil Defense).

Louise Wade, ESDA coordinator, said, "Are you between the ages of 18-77? If so, would you like to be an intricate part of a non-profit organization that can bring change to your life and at the same time serve your community in time of need? Become a volunteer today."

"Apply for an application to be considered as a member of the Granite City Auxiliary Police."

"Applications are available at the ESDA office and the Granite City Police station, located at 2330 Madison Ave., Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. The ESDA phone is 877-3137."

2 beaten after aiding friend

Three men and a woman were arrested after two men were beaten at about 12:40 a.m. Jan. 24 in the 1300 block of Rhodes Street.

Brian Long, 27, 601 Madison Ave., Madison, and Scott Jackson, 17, 1348 Rhodes St., said five men had been harassing a friend. After they went to their friend's aid, the five allegedly attacked them.

Long said one of the men pulled a knife and another struck him in the back of the head, knocking him down. He was then kicked. Jackson said two men struck him in the face while he was backed against a cyclone fence.

Long and Jackson had cuts and bruises to their heads.

Bradford Lee Cookston, 18, was arrested on one count of battery and Lyman Ever Cookston, 47, was arrested on two counts of battery. Both are from Harvey, La.

Scott Dewayne Cookston, 20, 1324 Rhodes St., was arrested on two counts of battery, escape, unlawful use of a weapon and criminal damage to property after he allegedly used his head to break out the front window of a squad car and escape.

He was captured a short distance away. Patrolmen alleged finding a pair of metal knuckles on him after his arrest.

Rebecca Ann Trittschuh, 18, 2525 Pontoon Road, was also arrested and charged with disorderly conduct after she allegedly yelled at a patrolman at the scene.

New school asbestos inspection program necessary in Madison

By Donna Kimbro
Staff writer

MADISON — All school buildings in the district will have to be re-inspected for asbestos since a new law was passed in 1987, Superintendent of Schools Dan Kostienki said.

The school district must have a management plan, to be implemented by Oct. 15, Kostienki told board members.

Once commonly used in construction, asbestos has been found to harm people's health.

To comply with state and federal guidelines, certified persons such as architects and engineers will have to write the plan. The superintendent is contacting firms which provide this service and will present all information at the February board meeting.

"I feel we must act on this immediately because the district and I could be fined $5,000 a day if inspectors do find asbestos in any of the buildings and the district has not made an effort to have the problem corrected," Kostienki said.

He said earlier inspections showed the school buildings were safe, with the exception of Louis Baer School; that building has been corrected, and is to be permanently closed this summer. "But we must proceed to follow the new guidelines to be safe," he said.

The cost of preparing the plan and conducting new inspections must be borne by the school district, since the state has not allotted any funds for the new project, Kostienki said.

Children, Family Services to move

The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services 1506 Johnson Road, will start moving Friday into a new one-story building at 2021 Johnson Road, near Frohhardt Grade School.

Agency spokesperson Don Szymula said service will begin in the new quarters Tuesday, Feb. 1.

The new building is bigger, Szymula said Tuesday. There are 15 private offices and conference rooms where parents can meet and all are on the first floor, he said.

The agency has about 20 local staff members, Szymula said. "At present we have five or six people working in two rooms. In the new building we'll have private rooms for consultations," he said.

The telephone number — 876-8885 — will not change. Office hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

State's attorney defends record in office

This is the second in a series examining the Madison County State's Attorney's Office. Part one explored criticisms area police chiefs and political opponents have for Dick Allen.

By D. W. Henderson
Staff affiliate

ALTON — Dick Allen took over as Madison County state's attorney in 1985, he sought to change the image of an office that his predecessor had made known for media-grabbing prosecutions.

Unlike Don Weber, his Republican predecessor and again a candidate for the office, Allen is not "preoccupied with trying high-profile cases."

Allen, D-Granite City, said the state's attorney's office in Madison County is not like a prosecutor's office where the only job is prosecutions.

"There are 12 paragraphs (in the state statutes) that set out the responsibilities, duties and authorities of the state's attorney. There is much more to it than the Felony Division," Allen said.

When he took over "the rest of the office was a shambles," Allen said.

Allen said it took time but he is now satisfied with how the office works.

"People involved in cases the public doesn't pay much attention to 'are just as concerned about their case as the high-profile ones. It's important to give everyone that comes in here the best service you can," Allen said.

Allen views himself more as an administrator than a prosecutor.

"There will be eight or 10 of these a day," Allen said, picking up a handful of telephone messages from his desk.

"To these people who call, their call to me is important. And if you involve yourself solely in the trial of a felony case because you want to get your name in the paper, that's maybe two weeks you're totally involved and maybe 60 people that have called that you haven't talked to," he said.

"As far as I'm concerned, that's not doing the job. I'm not here to be a big lock and a football star. I'm here to be a coach and see that everything runs right."

Allen said he's particularly proud of his office's enforcement of child support laws and work on county environmental concerns.

He said the Child Support Enforcement Program recovered more money than anywhere else downstate last year, and administrator John McGuire has received two awards in the last two years for his performance in that work.

Allen office's environmental work includes the halting of a sandblasting operation in Alton that was bothering local residents, preparation of data and involvement in the Barton Landfill problem, as well as other cases in Collinsville and Venice.

Most environmental cases "are terribly time consuming," he said.

Other progress, Allen said, includes computerization of the office and dealing with domestic violence.

Miles McCahill, an administrative assistant to Allen, said the state's attorney's office has more than 1,000 citizen requests for prosecution each year.

"The majority of those are domestic violence cases so we've set up the Domestic Violence Project" with the help of some state funding, he said.

McCahill said Madison County is one of two downstate counties that look advantage of state money available to start such a program.

Currently the office is dealing with some of the problems of domestic violence in conjunction with the Women's Crisis Center in Alton.

"They work out of our office providing advice

Allen answers chorus of critics

ALTON — There's a chorus of criticism against Madison County State's Attorney Dick Allen.

Leading the jeering section are area police chiefs; Bill Haine, the Alton attorney who beat Allen for the county's Democratic Party Central Committee's endorsement; and Don Weber, a Republican running to retake the seat he lost to Allen in 1984.

The chiefs said cooperation between the state's attorney and their offices is lacking; warrants are tough to get and there's too much plea bargaining.

Allen said his office had a problem last summer with "an overload of felonies," and that if he had the money he would hire another part-timer "to throw into the Felony Division."

But he calls criticism of the way warrants and plea bargaining are handled unfounded.

Allen said he strives for consistency. For that reason he has one person on DULs and Randy Massey handling warrants.

Allen said he doesn't want to be critical, but more warrants would be issued if police departments supplied enough information to prosecute cases.

Allen said the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation "very seldom brings in anything that is not makeable."

By comparison, the Alton Police Department, whose chief has criticized Allen, has a poor record of obtaining warrants.

"We just recently had a case from Alton, and Massey turned them down for a warrant," Allen said. "He gave them about nine other things they needed to do. When they came back again, they still didn't have anywhere near the nine things done."

Allen said the problem with police departments is "that once they get the warrant issued they're done, while our problem is just starting."

Allen said, "There is no sense issuing a warrant just to please a particular policeman or department, and there is no sense tying up the courts, tying up juries, tying up the judge, and tying up the system with a case that is not makeable."

Concerning criticism that his office does too much plea bargaining, Allen said the same people that handled felony cases under the last two state's attorneys do it now.

"The only thing I can say is they are more experienced now than they were then, so they may be doing a better job. I don't think it sticks that these people have somehow changed their attitude and are now bargaining out cases at lower sentences."

Allen said a prosecutor has to take many things into consideration when deciding whether to plea bargain.

"He has to evaluate how a witness is going to appear on the stand and how good the defense is, and these are things that a policeman is not competent to judge," he said.

"We don't go to the police departments and rant and rave about why you haven't done this and that. All we do is tell them what we have to have."

Allen gave labels of self-serving and unrealistic to the anti-plea bargaining posture recently publicized by St. Louis Circuit Attorney George Peach.

Peach said 96 percent of his cases pleaded as charged.

"Our position is that a criminal defendant should plead to the crime we felt he did, or he should have a trial," Peach said.

"If what he says is true, he must charge them with the most makeable crime," Allen responded.

"Anybody that says they are not going to plea bargain is not being honest with themselves or the general public."

and counsel to domestic violence victims, and we give them advice in the legal aspects of it," McCahill said.

Next week: The three candidates for state's attorney — two Democrats and one Republican — talk about their plans for the office.

Haine calls for return to use of death penalty

Madison County state's attorney candidate Bill Haine has called for the return of the death penalty in Madison County.

"Over the last two years, the number of murder cases has risen dramatically. Some of those cases have been particularly cold-blooded and brutal," Haine said.

"In civil law, victims are made whole with monetary awards. In criminal law, we must realize that victims and victims' families will never be made whole."

"Justice works when criminals receive sentences that fit the crime. In the case of a wanton murder, the state's attorney must prosecute to the full extent the law allows. The state's attorney must be willing to ask for the death penalty; otherwise, the victim's life is devalued."

Haine also proposed expanding the felony division in order to handle a backlog that has developed over the last three years.

"We must prosecute, not plea bargain. Sentences must be a deterrent to crime," Haine said. "Currently, the sentences received are neither consistent nor sufficient."

"Law enforcement officials risk their lives to bring criminals to trial only to see the criminal 'plea' his way out."

Haine proposes a policy similar to that at the St. Louis Circuit Attorney's Office, where criminals plead guilty to the original crime charge or go to trial.

Man attacked with sledgehammer

Three men, one wielding a hammer, attacked a Granite City man near his home about 6:25 p.m. Jan. 13.
Patrolmen found Jeffrey L. Curless, 26, 2500 State St., lying on the ground and bleeding from head wounds at 25th Street and Grand Avenue.

A witness said that after the three hit Curless they left in a car going north on Grand.

At the emergency room of St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Curless told patrolmen he was approached by the men while he was walking to his home. He said one man carrying a small sledgehammer hit him in the head and back after he fell to the ground, all three men kicked him.

Curless said he recognized one of the men as someone he had problems with at a lounge in Madison.

Curless suffered four cuts to his head and several bruises to his back, which showed the impact of the hammer.

Curless dazed the inside of a house at 2500 Edwards St. about 9 p.m. Jan. 20. The four knocked holes in walls, painted obscenities in the house, tore down ceiling lights, and emptied the contents of cabinets and closets onto the floor. The house is owned by Randall Hunt.

Edwards home entered
John Kowalk, 2415 Edwards St., said a burglar Jan. 19 took a strongbox containing coins and insurance papers from his house.

Booked for no taillight
Leonard C. Crone, 23, 508 Kirkpatrick Homes, was arrested at Edwards and Charles streets Jan. 22 on a warrant alleging failure to appear on a charge of not having taillight on a vehicle. He posted $102 bail and was released.

Nine dogs released
Nine dogs were released Jan. 25 from the city's Humane Society, Missouri Avenue, by a vandal who broke a window and cut a fence. The dogs were caught in the 2900 block of Denver Street.

Mishap at 17th-Madison

Donald A. Adams, 18, 16 Tracy Court, sustained injuries and was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center following an accident Jan. 22 in the 1700 block of Madison Avenue.

Adams' car pulled into the southbound lanes from a parked position against the curb and there was a collision with a car, also heading south, operated by Mary H. Jeffries, 2429 Roney Drive. Adams was ticketed for failing to yield to merging traffic.

Two warrants served

Patrick A. Sanders, 22, 302 Wilson Park Lane, was arrested Jan.

22 at the City Hall on two warrants, alleging battery and assault. Sanders appeared before a judge and was released on recognition.

Purse, $200 cash taken

Pat Newsome, 54 Janday Lane, briefly left her maroon shoulder purse in a shopping cart at Kozzyak's Market, 2800 Nameoki Road, and returned, finding it was gone, she reported Jan. 21. Cash amounting to $200 and miscellaneous papers were inside the purse.

24-foot catwalk gone

A 24-foot-long aluminum catwalk valued at $350 was stolen from 2718 Nameoki Road, where Norman Fenton, 2416 Grand Ave., was working, he reported Jan. 22.

Woman nabbed in theft

Connie Sue Sawyer, 33, Alton, was charged with retail theft Jan. 22 after she was stopped outside K mart, 3655 Nameoki Road, and held for police. A security guard alleged seeing Sawyer enter a store restroom with merchandise and place the items in her purse.

The guard said the woman left the store and then came back inside and allegedly attempted to get a refund on the property, which included a thermostat valued at $57 and a trimline telephone worth $60.

Vandal smashes window

Investigating a possible burglary, an officer found a vandal had thrown a brick through a sliding glass window next to the cashier's desk at the Granite City Car Wash, 3653 Nameoki Road, it was reported Jan. 23.

Traffic warrant served

Michael Joseph Staples, 19, 4040 Kathy Drive, Pontoon Beach, was arrested Jan. 23 at the Pontoon Beach Police Station on a Granite City warrant alleging failure to appear on a speeding charge. He posted $65 bail and was released.

Auto passenger injured

Earlene H. Moody, 2332 Cardinal Ave., attempting to turn left at Cottage Avenue into the Nameoki Village Shopping Center from northbound lanes of Nameoki Road on Jan. 22, went into the path of a southbound auto operated by Craig W. Sudholt, 14 Victoria Drive.

Moody, 72, was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. Janet Operle, 49, 2421 Wilson Ave., a passenger in the Moody car, sustained a minor injury in the collision.

State official visits Eagles

Paul Trinkle, Fraternal Order of Eagles state president, champion, and his wife, Phyllis, visited the local Eagles home.

Other Eagle dignitaries traveling to Granite City included: Michael Smith, past state president and Grand Aerie central regency president, and his wife, Stephanie, state Auxiliary vice president, Rock Island; and John Neuman Jr., past state president, and his wife, Corrine, past madame state president, Melrose Park.

Charles "Rabbit" Landfried, state vice president, Shiloh; W.A. "Red" McCawley, past grand worship president, Shiloh; Chris Kubatzke, state chaplain, Freeport; Jack Rountree, state treasurer, Monmouth; Virgil Goeh, state conductor, Quincy; Bernie Spradlin, state trustee, Freeport; Arlon Wendling, state Golden Eagle Fund chairman, Effingham.

Bob Stanton, state Illinois Eagle Educational Fund, Granite City; Harold Love, state Eagle Jimmy Durante Children's Fund chairman and publicity and his torian, Granite City; Corrine Neuman, state co-chairman for new aeries and archives; Betty Rohn, state aerie "Mother of the Year," Quincy; and Bud Shaffer, state Reyes Syndrome chairman, Granite City.

Also attending were Aerie District 7 officers: junior past director, Guido Gasperin, Collinsville; director, Love; vice director, Stanton; chaplain, John Piper, Granite City; conductor, Bill Hemken, Granite; inside guard, Jim Whirlgig, Shiloh; secretary, Don Horn, Granite City; treasurer, Ellis Wuerster, Shiloh; and trustees Virgil Gibson, Collinsville, and Frank Kaupman, Alton.

An informal get-acquainted evening was held the first day of the state Aerie officers' weekend. On Saturday evening, a dinner was held in the social room, decorated in blue and gold, with a large banner on the wall welcoming visitors. Prior to the meal was given by Granite City Aerie chaplain Jack Orwig. Donald Horn, Aerie 1126 president, and her Auxiliary members for the decorations and then thanked all of the people who had prepared the dinner for the evening.

Horn then introduced Mayor Von Dee Cruise who said, "I have seen the blueprints for the proposed expansion of your Eagles Home, and from what I have seen, you would have a beautiful building that our community could be proud of. Granite City is looking to the future for new improvements, and your plans may be a part of this expansion."

Cruise presented Trinkle with a framed certificate on behalf of the local Eagle Aerie and Auxiliary.

Horn presented Trinkle with a mouse doll dressed in blue gingham because the state president reported in the National Eagle Leader newspaper that his hobbie was collecting mice.

Trinkle, while discussing his theme, said he wanted a "Time For Us," "to say that we, Illinois Eagles, should pull together for a great membership increase."

to help our own Illinois Grand Worship President Vince Cherry. "It also means we should have a greater working team with the Aeries and Auxiliaries. I can see that this teamwork effort is well and alive in Granite City."

Smith said, "I am always happy to be invited to the Granite City area and see the many friends I have made over the years. As I've stated before, the impressive wall of bronze plaques adorning your wall shows the commitment your aerie has for the Eagle Charities."

Trinkle then presented Mr. and Mrs. Awards to Don and Yvonne Gray and Elmer and Delphia Deloney and the state presidents citations to Randy Gorn and Edna Hagan. Trinkle then introduced Stephanie Smith, who introduced State Auxiliary officers and chairman. Present were: Corrine Neuman, No-Goose Egg chairman and past madame state president; Betty Rohn, re-enrollment chairman and past madame state president; Betty Wendling, Southern Zone trustee and historian, Effingham; Audrey Spradlin, Eagles Max Baer Heart Fund chairman, Freeport; Florence "Puzz" Hagauer, Jimmy Durante Children's Fund Chairman, Granite City; and Angie Buehler, State Mother, Granite City.

Mapping Agency goals explained

David Black, public affairs officer for the Defense Mapping Agency Aerospace Center, presented a slide program at the Drusilla Andrews Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution meeting.

The program was on the mission of the agency, responsible for support and services to the Secretary of Defense, the joint chiefs of staff of the military departments and other services.

Black said the agency produces for worldwide distribution maps, charts, positioning data and digital data for strategic and tactical military operations and weapon systems. The center also supports the NASA Manned Space Mission with cartographic products.

The Arsenal was declared a National Historic site in 1975, some of the original buildings are still in use. The Arsenal originally served as an ordnance depot producing ammunition and small arms.

The meeting was opened by regent Linda Koenig. The president general's message was read by Barbara Williams.

Chosen as a delegate to the state convention to be held in March in Springfield, Ill., was Koenig, with Williams as alternate delegate.

Also, in attendance were hostess Joyce Taff, Florence Simpson, Marie Reinhardt, Edith Beeler, Margaret Belk, Georgia Engelle, Mae McCormick, Mildred McCormick, Florence Woodward and guests. Mary Ann Gloeck and Louise Webb.

Gabriel Shrine holds ceremonies

The state meeting of Gabriel Shrine was held Dec. 10 at the Granite City Masonic Temple. Donna and Heura Thomas were the presiding officers.

Officers in attendance were Helen Schwendemann, Jerry Prager, Linda Wiesehan, Edna Brown, Ronna Daily, Mary Hoover, Lucille Tabor, Mary Ellen Lewis, Mary Ann DeHart, Lois Hebblethwaite, Effie Johnston, Peggy Gibbons, Karen Bronsman, Lloyd Lewis, Gladys Fuhrman, Mary French, Earl French and Gary Daily.

Pro-term officers were Karmyn Edmonds, John Everson, Charles Keef, Art Weinkemper, Bob Rigby, Kermit Paton and Oco Woods. Other officers for the evening were Judy Maloney, Maggie Winberry, Ruth Cox, Bea Rigby and Eudiah Paton.

A ceremonial was held inducting two new members, Sandra Ruffcorn and Ed Morton. John Belcoff was presented with a 25-year pin.

John 19:30... It is finished.

These were the last words that Jesus uttered in his life. And perhaps they are the most powerful words he ever spoke. Christ was not referring to his own life when he said, "It is finished." Because no one had the power to take his life from him. He alone had that power. Not only to lay it down, but to take it up again. The finished work of Jesus was this: the sins of mankind were now atoned for. The Father's will had been carried out. Satan had been eternally defeated, never again to have power against the people of God.

Christ said, "Now, it is finished," and he could have as well said, "Now, it begins."

Will you let God's work begin in you? Today.

OPENNESS... THE KEY TO RELATIONSHIPS

It has been said that all personal growth and healing comes through our relationships with others.

Nothing in nature grows in a vacuum. Just as flowers need the interaction of soil, water and nutrients to bloom, so man needs interaction with his fellow man in order to survive physically and mentally.

What then is the key that opens the door to our interactions and relationships with our fellow man? I think that key is openness.

Any relationship, be it marriage or friendship, is only as good as its communications. It is only when two people can honestly tell each other who they are, what they think, value, feel, love, honor, hate, hope for, and are committed to, can a relationship develop and reach its full potential.

Unfortunately, for many people honest communication does not come easily.

We spend a lifetime talking in generalities. We really don't develop relationships, we have encounters with those around us.

How many of us live for years with our spouse, but never really take time to know them? We don't open up to them, they don't open up to us.

Parents can't understand why their children do what they do and the children can't understand why their parents set rules and give them obligations. Why can't husbands and wives and the children who are living together understand each other? Because they don't really know each other, they have never communicated their hopes, dreams, beliefs and fears to each other. They don't have a relationship, they have an encounter.

If you can't have an open, honest, meaningful relationship with those who are the closest to you, how can you hope to have anything but encounters with the rest of the world?

All deep and authentic relationships are based on openness and honesty. Openness and honesty isn't easy, it takes courage to lay open your soul to even one other person.

But to have a meaningful relationship, that is exactly what you must do. You must trust the other person not to judge your ideas and beliefs, but to respect them, just as you must respect their ideas and beliefs.

If you can take that step, if you can be open and honest, your rewards can be great. You will develop relationships with your family that are based upon respect and trust, your friends will be true friends, not just acquaintances, and you will grow and prosper as a human being.

It comes right after the Super Tuesday. Most delegates from southern states at the Democratic Convention will be selected on Super Tuesday, March 8. It is considered the most important primary date in the country, with 20 states involved.

In response to a question from Carbondale, Simon said he would re-introduce federal revenue sharing for the nation's towns and cities if elected. Revenue sharing was phased out by the Reagan administration.

Simon said, however, he would not seek to fund revenue sharing at the levels it once was. Another questioner from Chicago asked whether Simon would be on hand Wednesday to vote on President Reagan's Supreme Court nominee Anthony Kennedy.

Simon, who is on the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee, said he could not be in Washington to vote,

Candidates discuss views on defense

"In Pete Fields you get someone who knows the value of fiscal responsibility. I believe we shouldn't be spending enormous amounts of money on nuclear weapons. I believe we should have a strong conventional arsenal," Fields said.

Expenditures for conventional systems are also more likely to be spent in the district than appropriations for nuclear weapons systems would be, Fields said.

Mike Mansfield, 33, Belleville, a Democratic Party candidate who was Price's top Washington aide until taking a leave of absence, said he would follow in his boss's footsteps and join the House Armed Services Committee.

"Defense is the biggest employer in the 21st district," Mansfield said.

Mansfield said he supported most weapons systems, both nuclear and non-nuclear, and was backing the Reagan administration.

Unlike Fields, Mansfield said he would have voted for the M-X missile and B-1B Bomber, though he thinks "super weapons systems" spending should be better scrutinized.

"The whole point of having weapons systems is to prevent war. These are weapons that prevent war," Mansfield said.

Mansfield said he has toured many U.S. military bases as Price's aide and as a result convinced himself to be well-versed on defense issues. In order to pare defense spending, Mansfield said he would look at cutting back on some U.S. defense installations overseas and cited the 350,000 U.S. troops stationed in Europe.

He is the only candidate to offer such support of the space defense system.

Candidate Jerry Costello, 38, Belleville, St. Clair County Board chairman, said his top job as a congressman would be to defend defense spending in the district and said he would seek to be on the Armed Services Committee.

"What I would want to do is to be an outspoken advocate for Scott Air Force Base and the Granite City Army depot."

"Our national defense is as important as the federal government has and it has a direct economic impact on this district," Costello said.

Costello said he understands that defense cuts will probably be needed, but said he wanted to but will vote for the nomination in absentia. Simon, who was publisher and editor of the Troy Tribune, said he appreciated the support from people in the area where he got his political start. He said, if elected president, he would not forget where he came from.

Madison Mayor John Bellico, said he was confident that Simon would be the next president.

"I'm not worried about Paul's finish (in Iowa). The silent majority of the American people is a friend of mine and he (Simon) is a friend of mine," Cruse said. He said he remembered when he first met Simon when Simon was campaigning in Granite City for state office.

"I first saw Paul Simon when he was knocked on my front door," Cruse said.

Other mayors attending the meeting included Belleville Mayor Rich Brauer, Cahokia Mayor Mike King and Wood River Mayor Lon Smith.

Quality Sand's special use permit to the zoning board of appeals. The board said it could find no record of granting Quality Sand approval for two mobile home parks.

The legal notice filed Aug. 24 in the Third Circuit Court, Quality Sand alleged interference with the development of its property.

Police Beach acknowledged in the settlement that two ordinances may exist relating to the development of mobile home parks and that there may have been some confusion created over which ordinance applied to Quality Sand.

Costello said he would support a freeze on defense spending. He said that should there be a need to cut defense, he would support cuts in nuclear weapons systems.

"The Soviet Union and the U.S. agree to a comprehensive nuclear arms treaty, Maragides said. He said the U.S. could save money by cutting nuclear weapons expenditures.

"That's where the money is being spent and that's where I would want to cut," Maragides said. He said he would tend not to support the administration's Star Wars initiative.

"The majority of scientists believe Star Wars is just not feasible" and would be too expensive, Maragides said.

Party honors past city employee on 65th birthday

A birthday celebration was hosted by Irene Macko in honor of the 65th birthday of her husband, Joseph, on Jan. 14.

Attending were his son, Joe; daughter, Mrs. Harry (Helen) Peterson and her children, Brian and Laura; daughter, Joann Macko, and her daughter, Carrie Jo; daughter, Mary Macko, and daughter, Brandee Joy; and daughter, Elaine, and Frank Komoroni, and son, Tony.

Macko is a retired employee of the City of Madison and a member of the St. Joseph Slovak Catholic Union.

Don and Sylvia Reeves have returned from a month's trip to Brownsville, Texas, where they visited their children, Robert and Donna Reeves, both school teachers in Brownsville.

Their son is a sixth-grade teacher and a former employee of Ravanelli's Restaurant, and their daughter is a learning disabilities teacher and taught at Harris School until December.

The Secular Order of Franciscans held its first meeting of the year Jan. 17 in St. Mary's Chapel Room. The Rev. Jim Keefner offered Benediction services at 1:30 in the church, followed by the meeting.

President Mary Krajnovich presided.

Dorothy Hoedebeck gave a financial report.

Mildred Zikovich and Lee Ann Moran volunteered to visit the sick and shut-in members for a one-month period.

Plans were discussed for a trip in the spring.

It was reported that the annual Christmas party was attended by 38 members and guests at Engelbert Hall. Christmas carols were sung, games played and prizes awarded.

Guests included Sister Bernadette, Sister Mary John, Sister Joan and Sister Margaret Mary and the Revs. Donald Meehling, St. Margaret Mary Church, and Bill Fisherkeller, St. Joseph-Sacred Heart Church.

Keffner gave a report on a group of Franciscan priests who visited Israel recently. The chaplain at St. Elizabeth Medical Center was a member of the group.

Refreshments were served, and prizes won by Verna Thomas, Klotine Mosby and Florence Powers.

The next meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 21.

Teri Lake celebrated her 24th birthday with a dinner Jan. 15 at Ralph and Charlie's Steak House.

Attending were her husband, John, Steve and Mary Lou Dohnal; Dave and Teresa Mooshegan; and Jeff and Betty Skinner.

A family dinner was held Jan. 17 at the home of her parents, Carol and Gene Robertson. Others present were Amy and Jim Andrews.

The Madison Minerva Club met Jan. 14 at the home of Mary Moore.

President Nancy Cottfield presided. Roll call was answered by members naming their favorite singers.

Those attending were Norma Eaves, Irene Orr, Loretta McGee, Velda Taylor and Louise Kern. A potluck lunch was served after the meeting.

Next month's meeting will be held at the home of Mary Fields.

Sgt. and Mrs. Barry (Elaine) Reynolds and son, Craig, spent the holidays visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Erle Reynolds, Madison, and Mr. and Mrs.

Lou Weinhoff, Granite City. They also visited grandparents in Fremont, Mo., and St. Louis.

Also present at the Reynolds home on Christmas were Carla, Grace and Jeff Ford. A phone call was received from their son, Andrew Reynolds, who is stationed on the U.S.S. Guam in Norfolk, Va.

Reynolds and his family returned to Fort Benning, Ga., where he is involved in the testing and demonstration of the Bradley tank.

Erle Reynolds celebrated his birthday Jan. 16 with dinner at Stuart Anderson's Cattle Co., followed by dessert at home. Attending were his wife, June, and daughters, Carla and Mrs. Jeff (Grace) Ford.

Glik Retirees met at the home of Juanita Rosenberg on Jan. 21. The group discussed a copy of a 1957 Press-Record ad for Glik's in which some of the members were pictured.

The group went to Hazel Rollin's clubhouse for lunch and an afternoon of cards.

Those present were: Mary Moore, Leslie Donnell, Juanita Rosenberg, Millie Sherman, Mary Baumberger, Helen Knezevich, Van Stuart, Freda Hicks and Janet Rollins.

The Quilting Club met at the home of Vera Sikora on Jan. 18. Breakfast was served to Katie Susicich, Catherine Orris, Mary Ann Bunk and Catherine Measick. The group completed the quilt they were making.

Fireman First Class Stephen Romanic graduated from basic training Dec. 18 at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

Attending the ceremonies were his grandparents, Pete and Helen Romanic; sister, Jennifer, Madison; and his aunt, Yvonne Hickman and sons, Dennis and Brian, from St. Charles.

After a visit home, Romanic returned to Great Lakes to attend a six-month technical school for boiler and turbine instruction.

30 from area march in abortion protest

By David Rocks
Clarion Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — More than 30 Southern Illinoisans joined an estimated 50,000 anti-abortion protesters who marched on the Capital on Jan. 22 to protest the Supreme Court's landmark decision legalizing abortion.

President Ronald Reagan praised the demonstrators by telephone from the Oval Office before the march and told the crowd gathered near the White House he will continue to press Congress for legislation that would ban federally-funded abortions.

"I think we cannot continue to kill babies, to deny them their right to life," said Carlene Boubmetner of Cahokia. "God does not like us playing God."

The marchers vowed to change the Supreme Court's decision on the abortion issue, with most looking to Reagan's appointment of Judge Anthony

M. Kennedy to be the deciding vote.

"Each year we get closer to reversing Roe v. Wade," said Norma Sidener of Troy, Ill., president of Collinsville Area Right to Life.

Reagan, in his telephone speech, said the administration will soon publish regulations that would stop any U.S. government funding for family planning groups that provide abortion counseling.

Those bad old 'good old days'

The East Side Levee and Sanitary District dated back to 1907. Its successor, the Metro East Sanitary District, is still making news in 1988.

Unfortunately, most of the news ESLS and MESD have made during that long period has been of the sad kind.

Once notorious for tax waste, patronage abuses, high spending, non-competitive buying and bidding procedures and even worse practices, the levee district has "cleaned up its act" under the leadership of Walter "Shang" Greathouse, who cut payrolls and other costs with great energy and precision.

DESPITE HIS REFORMS, new problems have arisen.

No one wants to return to those bad old "good old days" in which taxpayers were ill-treated. But there comes a time when "spending only what you can afford" is not a total answer, either.

At the Jan. 20 Rotary-community prayer breakfast in Granite City, MESD Executive Director Greathouse said it is essential to take preventive steps now to lower the underground water table and to upgrade pumping stations, ditches, bridges and equipment.

His 60 employees work hard but can't meet all needs and all the rain-and-river threats to life and property — due to current budget limits, he said.

Bill Terrell, breakfast committee chairman, said the prayer group will continue its MESD discussion Feb. 10 and try to decide on a course of action at that time. Greathouse is appealing for help, and wants local residents to be aware and involved.

STATE REP. SAM WOLF can't "solve" the district's money woes by asking the General Assembly to raise MESD's maximum authorized tax rate. Even if he and a few other nearby legislators tried to do this, it would be voted down overwhelmingly in the 118-member House of Representatives.

What he can do is seek legislation to let voters decide.

Although tax referendums are difficult to pass, it might be possible

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

It is not surprising that the alternative is as bad as it appears to be (serious flooding without warning at random locations) and if the benefits are as great as they seem to be (large federal expenditures to make essential improvements).

IN A NUTSHELL, Greathouse says the MESD spends $2 million a year and needs twice that amount.

Its eroded tax base includes poverty-stricken areas, such as East St. Louis, and cities like Granite City that have lost some of their industries and population.

The proposed bigger budget would include $400,000 yearly to operate and maintain a system of wells and pumps to lower the water table in the usually-saturated American Bottoms.

THAT SYSTEM would cost $8 million but could be installed "free" (no local real estate taxes).

Uncle Sam (that's you and me, of course) would pay $6 million, Illinois would provide $800,000 and MESD would give the equivalent of $1,200,000 in the form of its land.

Unless MESD finds a way to shoulder future operating costs, however, the available $6,800,000 won't be forwarded.

KEEP IN MIND that, in addition to this new project to ease pressure on basement walls and to reduce the likelihood of costly sewer breaks in Granite City and elsewhere, MESD is responsible for drainage ditches and 14 surface-water pump stations.

One of the stations suffered a broken gate on Oct. 4, 1986. The Mississippi River raced into East St. Louis, damaging 1,200 homes and causing 10,000 people to be evacuated.

The gate has since been repaired with $631,000 from the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, $557,000 in federal emergency funds and $300,000 from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Some of the other gates are older than the one that broke, and could fail at any time. Many of the ditches leading to them are weed-filled and aren't doing the job they were designed for.

It is estimated that a $25 million transfusion (not counting MESD's operating budget) is needed to bring the facilities and the overall flood control system into good, safe condition.

THE FIRST $1 MILLION of the $25 million was provided in this year's federal budget and more will be sought from the U.S. in future years.

Why look to Washington, already beset by gigantic annual deficits? One of the reasons is that it would be unfair to look only to Quad City area and East St. Louis area property owners to finance the work.

MESD collects taxes from a 100-square-mile area but handles runoff drainage from 430 square miles.

INTERIOR FLOOD CONTROL is a topic few people want to think about, but it's pertinent; while I was on my honeymoon in May 1956 four inches of rain fell in Granite City in one hour, damaging a home I had just bought.

The rain inconvenienced many other people, too. I remember it vividly because we returned here earlier than originally planned, to oversee the repairs.

Such occurrences impressed on me the importance of maintaining Horseshoe Lake and similar bodies of water at a level much less than full, to make sure they had reserve holding capacity and could serve as a "safety valve" in the event of an unusual storm.

MESD is among the agencies keeping track of such not-so-minor details.

Plan would give drivers free use of Eads Bridge

By Roger McGrath
Staff affiliate

Toll booths on the Eads Bridge could be coming tumbling down once the City of St. Louis takes title to the span, a St. Louis official said.

The city probably will seek federal funds for the bridge, Jill Roach, director of city planning, said. Because such funding can't be used to maintain toll roads, the Eads would have to become a free bridge, she said.

But Jim Sussmann, director of the city streets department, is not sure the free-bridge concept is the way to go.

"If you owned the bridge, it'd probably make sense to keep collecting 50-cent tolls to accumulate a repair fund," he said.

The city would gain title to the 114-year-old bridge as part of the plan for construction of the Metro Link light-rail system that would link East St. Louis with north St. Louis County. Metro Link would cross the Mississippi River on the Eads Bridge, which now is owned by the Terminal Railroad Association.

Under the light-rail plan, the association would transfer ownership of Eads to the city in return for the MacArthur Bridge, which now is owned by the city.

Interest in the Eads span has increased since the Illinois Department of Transportation announced the nearby M.L. King Bridge would be closed Apr. 14 for a 14-month repair job.

IDOT officials are proposing a plan that would make the Eads two lanes westbound-only for the morning rush hour, and eastbound-only for the evening drive.

The bridge deck widens to four lanes at the toll booths on the Missouri side of the river.

"This is just a proposal. It's still a long way from reality," said Dale Klohr, district engineer in IDOT's Collinsville office.

He outlined the plan for officials of St. Louis, East St. Louis and the Terminal Railroad on Jan. 20. Those parties would have to agree before the one-way Eads plan could be implemented.

St. Louis' traffic department, for example, would have to erect signs directing traffic, and perhaps re-time the traffic lights on Washington Avenue.

The bridge dumps traffic into Washington Avenue.

What makes the Eads Bridge proposal attractive is designation of the southernmost lane as a high-occupancy vehicle (HOV) lane, Klohr said. Only buses, vans and cars with three or more passengers can use such a lane.

"The big thing an HOV lane does is, it makes mass transit very attractive," Klohr said. IDOT wants to get more people to use car pools, van pools and buses to ease congestion on the Poplar Street Bridge, he said.

More than 130,000 vehicles cross the Poplar Street bridge every day. December traffic on the Eads was up a total of only 600 cars, which translated into about 4,000 vehicles a day, said Larry Shelby, chief of the Terminal Railroad police department.

About 800 buses now cross the Eads every month, he added. In fact, it is Bi-State's chief route into downtown from Illinois, said Todd Plesko, Bi-State scheduling director.

Make disclosure complete

There are nibbles, but thus far no candidates have taken the bait — our request two weeks ago for full financial disclosure.

We suggested candidates in the 21st Congressional District race could end speculation about who's really the rich kid on the block by providing not only the broad statement of income required by the federal government, but by delivering their income tax statements to the public.

If money is an issue as some have tried to make it — at the expense of St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello — then all candidates should go all the way to show their assets and liabilities.

The public should know where candidates have their money invested, whether it be stock in war products companies, Illinois Power Co., agricultural chemical companies or toy companies.

The public should know to what charities — left wing or right, religious or secular, or not at all — the candidates are giving.

The public should know such facts because they may provide insight into the candidates' that ordinary reporting would not reveal.

All candidates should provide their completed 1986 income tax forms and thoroughly document in what ways their money is invested.

Link stadium with center

When politicians emerge from deliberations in smoke-filled backrooms, it is not always good news for the public. But an exception may be a weekend meeting in which leaders of the city and county of St. Louis agreed to back a domed stadium to be connected with the Cervantes Convention Center.

It will be recalled that St. Louis County sought to build a stadium in Riverport on the banks of the Missouri River opposite St. Charles. The goal was to retain the football Cardinals in this region but they have since decided to fly westward to Arizona. City fathers fought the county plan but now both groups are willing to work for a new downtown stadium.

Such a stadium would be a blessing for the bi-state area. It would set the stage for serious efforts to attract a new professional football team. It would be a replacement for the aging Arena, hosting not only ice hockey but perhaps a pro basketball team as well. It would greatly enhance the convention center, permitting St. Louis to compete more effectively for the biggest of meetings, including national political nominating conventions. Illinoisans have long lamented the tendency to build ever farther to the west, creating a lop-sided metropolitan area in which this state lagged behind in population and economic growth. A west-county stadium would have accelerated that trend, but a downtown center can reinforce the Mississippi River as the heart of a truly two-state region.

A price will have to be paid by St. Louis to win county help; city officials are talking of allowing the county government to participate in decisions affecting the operation of city-controlled Lambert Airport. St. Charles County and Metro East also might be given a voice.

In addition, it is proposed that the city, county and state each provide $80 million over the next 20 years to help pay for the stadium construction and convention center expansion project.

This seed money may be enough to arrange for full funding, and the basic idea of linking the indoor stadium plan with the Cervantes Center is immensely sensible. We hope it becomes a reality, soon.

Dual Scott role feasible

William Pollard, regional director of the Federal Aviation Administration, is right in concluding that joint military and civilian use of Scott Air Force Base, Belleville, is feasible.

With its own expansion limited, Lambert Airport in St. Louis County will gradually need to be supplemented by a second major landing field. Since the huge Scott airport already exists, it is the logical alternate site when Lambert becomes too crowded to handle some of its arriving and departing flights. Scott officials see no problem as long as there is adequate regard for the Air Force mission, readiness, security and safety. The state is being counted on to assist in Scott site improvements related to civilian use, and steps would be taken to coordinate Lambert and Scott flight patterns.

Some details remain to be worked out, but the finding indicates environmental factors are favorable and a mutually agreeable master plan is attainable.

Although the two airports are relatively close to each other in an era when airliners approach the speed of sound, there is a certain balance between their locations near the northwest and southeast corners of the bi-state metropolitan area.

Access is likely to be greatly enhanced once the Metro Link light rail transportation system is in operation. Its initial route will connect Lambert Airport with downtown St. Louis and East St. Louis, with later spurs extending to such communities as Granite City and Belleville.

Once such transit lines are in use, the Quad City area might find itself linked by rail cars with both Lambert and Scott Field.

Such conjecture admittedly extends years into the future, but major facilities and traffic patterns inevitably involve considerable time for planning and implementation. And the role of Scott in civilian air travel could begin in the near future, reducing Lambert's congestion and delays.

Simon's 'rich bashing' approach unjustified in spotlight of reality

To the editor:

Honesty is not a virtue that we have come to expect from political candidates, but, unfortunately, we have been conditioned to question the candidates only on sex, drugs and plagiarism. As the primaries near, perhaps it is time again to question the honesty of the candidates on the subjects they say they hold so dear. Namely, the issues.

Illinois' own Sen. Paul Simon has led the Democratic pack in offering promises that few believe will be carried out. Buckling to pressure from opponents to explain just how he plans to pay for his bloated social programs, the senator falls back onto the historic cliché of "Let's tax the rich."

"If necessary," Simon states, "let's tax the people" who have received the greatest tax reductions during the Reagan era.

This "bash the rich" sentiment is echoed all too often by left-wing vote beggars and is particularly common during the current call for increased taxes by Democratic candidates.

Critics of both the 1981 tax cuts and the 1986 tax reform measure continue to warn that these actions have reduced the tax burden of the wealthy. The truth, however, has proven just the opposite. In fact, if Simon truly intends to increase the taxes for those individuals who have benefited the most during the Reagan era, he may well be taxing the "poor" to pay for his new middle-class program.

Figures released by the U.S. Department of Treasury, and confirmed by Congressional reports, show that as a result of Reagan's 1981 tax cuts, the wealthy have paid an increasingly larger proportion of the tax burden.

IRS figures show that in 1981, the top 1 percent of the wage earners (making more than $100,000 per year) paid 15.2 percent of all individual income taxes. By 1983, after the Reagan tax cuts, this same group paid a full 19.6 percent of the taxes.

During the same period, the proportion of all taxes paid by the "poor" (those earning less than $10,000) dropped, albeit slightly, from 1.3 percent in 1982 to 1.6 percent in 1983.

Further, the nonpartisan Congressional Research Service reports that "based on currently available data," the tax reform legislation passed in 1986 "appears to increase the progressivity of the tax system."

These reports indicate that while the tax burden for wealthier Americans will increase even further as a result of the Reagan administration's tax policies, millions of impoverished individuals and poor families have been completely dropped off the tax rolls.

Yet, we continue to hear Democrats "bash the rich" in their efforts to scheme their way into the White House. Sen. Simon goes further, exclaiming that his vote against the tax reform bill was his single greatest vote in the U.S. Senate.

In light of the evidence showing how the poor have benefited from the tax code during the Reagan administration, Simon hardly sounds like the "liberal senator in the style of Harry Truman" which he so frequently trumpets himself to be.

Simon knows better than to suggest that the wealthy have been given a "free ride" during the Reagan Administration. It is time that he "fess up" to the American people.

All of the presidential contenders have a responsibility to the public that goes far beyond sex, drugs and plagiarism. They have a responsibility to be honest in reporting and critiquing the goals and accomplishments of the current and previous presidential administrations.

Mansfield honors teacher

To the editor:

I just learned that a favorite teacher of mine, Jack Haskell, is retiring from Belleville Area College. I just want your readers to know how much praise Jack deserves, and how much I personally owe him.

It was Jack who opened my eyes and mind to the vast worlds of history and government. He taught me the importance of the present in light of the past. He made great men and women of the past come alive. Jack made learning fun and meaningful.

Jack fostered a reverence for learning that will stay with this former student forever. A quiet, unassuming man, he worked wonders in the classroom.

Teaching, as Jack taught, was not a job but an art. And it was his artful manner that led me toward bachelor's and master's degrees. I credit him with any success I've had as a college instructor myself.

Jack can take comfort in the following quotation because it applies so aptly to him: "A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."

Thank you, Jack Haskell, for teaching me a love for history and the true meaning and dignity of learning.

What Iowa means in terms of image

Candidates want victory in Iowa. Media victory.

They aren't investing time and money just to woo Iowa's voters. The Des Moines library provided figures to show only 12 percent of the nation's population lives in Iowa. Fewer voters there.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., says 60 percent of the nation's population will vote as Democrats in Iowa's caucuses Feb. 8. Iowa means little in raw numbers, but candidates want it.

Ask Missouri's Dick Gephardt. He's campaigned about two years in the Hawkeye State.

Or our own Sen. Paul Simon. One of his people told me Monday that a poll showing a three-way tie among Democrats indicated Simon will nose out Gephardt and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Candidates want the most important asset Iowa offers its voters — a bath in the media whirlpool.

Iowa's caucuses will get almost 30 percent of all media coverage in the 1988 presidential primary election, if statistics provided during a recent Mid-America Press Institute repeat.

The winner will be spotlighted by the networks and newspapers. His face, or at least his bow tie in one case, will actually become connected to his name.

The winner can take the media momentum gained in Iowa on to an even smaller state, New Hampshire, Feb. 16.

Never mind that New Hampshire represents about a half percent of the nation's population. Almost 15 percent of the presidential primary election coverage will occur there.

Whatever he does in New Hampshire, the winner in the Iowa caucus can be sure his name will be kept in front of the public. At the very least, the media will want to say how he fared, to make comparisons between what happened in Iowa and New Hampshire.

From New Hampshire, the winner in the Iowa caucuses can hope to ride the crest of media exposure to the big gig, a 20-state primary — Super Tuesday, March 8.

Iowa provides few votes, but it offers what's most important to the candidates at the outset of their campaigns — the chance for virtual unknowns to build a national image that could propel them to their parties' nominations.

How will Simon do in Illinois?

How do you think Sen. Paul Simon will do in the Illinois primary March 15 in his bid for the White House and what do you see as his strongest campaign issue?

Mike King,
Mayor of Cahokia

"I have just strong feelings he'll do excellent in the Illinois primary. Apathy is the problem with the Democratic Party. We have to get the people out (to vote) to do the job. (Simon is) clean, unapproachable, knowledgeable and most important, he's honest."

John Bellcoff,
Mayor of Madison

"He'll come out on top in the Illinois primary because of his honesty and integrity. They (the other candidates) can't touch him. He's talking about federal help, revenue sharing and financial programs for cities."

Von Den Cruse,
Mayor of Granite City

"I think he's going to run way ahead of the pack in the Illinois primary. As far as for Granite City and the rest of the country, putting people to work (is most important). Give them an opportunity to better themselves."

Preceptor reviews events

Preceptor Beta Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi observed its annual festivities between the Christmas and New Year's holidays at the home of President Carol Cathey.

Members began the party with a buffet supper, followed by the cultural program, "The Spirit of Christmas in Other Lands." Each member presented a different country and told how Christmas is observed there and the traditions celebrated every year. Resource material for the program was furnished by Linda Koenig and Marilyn Lumpkins.

The opening ritual was repeated, and Cathey presided at the business meeting.

Roll call and secretarial reports were made by Betty Beck. Koenig gave the treasurer's report, and the president reviewed the December executive board report. Regular reports were made by Secretary Protem Lumpkins for the board session and regular meeting.

The theme basket award was won by Barbara Hente and Carolyn Walsh.

Lumpkins reported that the bell-ringing day was successful. Proceeds and chapter donations were given for the Salvation Army Tree of Lights.

The special committee, Koenig and Walsh, was thanked by the hosts for its assistance with Christmas party preparations.

Vice-President Vickie Barth reported that the membership committee would have guests at the next meeting in January at the home of Betty Beck. Sunshine chairman Koenig said Roberta Crawford was home from the hospital.

The Ways and Means Friendship Basket was passed to B.J. Jones and the Bridge of Friendship theme basket prizes were won by Hente, Koenig, Cherrel Smith and Walsh.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When does the owner of a business establishment have a duty to protect his patrons from harm caused by other people on the premises? Several Illinois cases have indicated that a business needs to protect its patrons only if the owner is aware of a potentially dangerous condition.

In one recent case, two men attempted to enter a health club and bar. Two employees of the club refused to allow the men into the bar because they appeared to be intoxicated. The employees later testified that they were aware that the men had been drinking since they had bloodshot eyes and slightly slurred speech. When they were asked to leave, the two intoxicated gentlemen became abusive and obnoxious.

The club employees did not escort the men to the parking lot nor did they call the police. Furthermore, there was no club supervision of the parking lot. The intoxicated men got in their car, and an argument ensued with another club patron when there was a near collision of their respective vehicles. The men who had been refused admittance to the club got back into their car and purposely drove into the other man's car and pinned his leg against the vehicle. He eventually had the leg amputated below the knee.

The man who was injured not only sued the driver of the vehicle but he also brought suit against the club. The basis for his action against the health club was for its asserted failure to control the intoxicated driver of the other vehicle. The plaintiff alleged that the club should have notified the police of the intoxicated state of the two men. In addition, the injured party felt that the owners of the business establishment should have protected the plaintiff from the intoxicated driver, and that there should have been security personnel in the parking lot.

The Court rejected all of these arguments, and a verdict was directed in favor of the health club. The Court noted that there was no evidence concerning any prior incidents with the two intoxicated men. In addition, the Court noted that the club had no way of knowing of the intoxicated driver's violent or dangerous nature. Whereas the employees of the club knew that the individual had been drinking, they could not have known the extent of his intoxication. Therefore, the Court refused to hold the club itself liable for the injuries.

United Methodists to host couple

The Rev. and Mrs. Charles (Martha) Elkjer, missionaries to Brazil, will speak at Methodist Churches in Madison and in Granite City on Sunday.

The couple will speak at the United Methodist Church of Madison, Fifth Street and Ewing Avenue, Madison, at 9:30 a.m., Jan. 31, and at the Dewey Avenue United Methodist Church, 2136 Dewey Ave., at 10:50 a.m.

The Elkjers, missionaries with OMS International, have served in Brazil since 1953. Charles Elkjer was founding dean of the OMS Londrina Bible Seminary.

Later, he became president of the school, where for 32 years he and his wife have served as professors. He also serves as chaplain of the seminary.

Mrs. Elkjer has been involved with music, drama and Christian education at the seminary.

The Elkjers are in the United States represent-

Church Women United holds annual assembly

Church Women United of the Quad-City Area held its annual assembly at St. John's Lutheran Church, 2001 St. Clair Ave., and installed newly elected officers.

The Rev. Samuel Boda, pastor of the host church, welcomed the group and offered the opening prayer.

The retiring president, Lena Seitzer, Central Christian Church, conducted the morning session. After the business meeting, she thanked the retiring officers and chairpersons for their work during the past two years and gave recognition to special members.

She closed with the reading of a version of "Footprints in the Sand."

The officers were installed by Arlene Brinkmeyer, St. Peter's Evangelical United Church of Christ.

Installed were: President Dorothy Kinney, St. Peter's; Vice President Dorothy Luckert, Nameoki United Methodist Church; Vice President Mae Lee, Trinity United Methodist Church; Secretary Flora Mea Lensing, Central Christian Church; Treasurer Eva Clemmons, Good Shepherd United Methodist Church; and nominating committee Ruth Jensen, St. John United Methodist Church.

During the ceremony, each officer was given a pink carnation. The president received a red rose. Seitzer presented the gavel to Kinney, and the new president presented an engraved charm from the unit to the retiring president.

New chairwomen are: auditing, Louise Anderson, Nameoki Presbyterian; and Brinkmeyer, Crop, Jean Hileman, Dewey Avenue United Methodist Church; Layette, Annabelle Patton, St. Peter's; and Helen Bischoff, Nameoki United Methodist Church; Least Cost, Gladys Williams, Bethel A.M.E.; legislation, Linda McGee, Pontoon Beach Church of Christ; adult literacy, Beth Spengler, Central Christian Church.

Newletter, Louise Favier, St. Peter's; Deloris Vogeler, Niedringhaus United Methodist Church; senior services, Mabel Anderson; nominating, Gladys Williams and Mabel Gersch, Niedringhaus, and Jensen, Project Help, Notre Cordillous, Nameoki Presbyterian Church; publicity, Mildred Jungels, St. Peter's; and Sunshine, Florence Simpson, Third Baptist Church.

The committee, Jane Kennedy, St. John's, Marie Isenburgh, Nameoki United Methodist Church, and Spengler; and New Imperative, Joyce Schrader and Doris Edwards, both of Central Christian Church. Seitzer will be the immediate past president and historian.

Kinney announced the group wants to resume its blood drive in the area.

The "New Imperative," a five-year program of all units in the country, was discussed by Edwards and Schrader. This will be the theme for the Spring Forum on Feb. 9 at Mount Nebo Church in Madison. This deals with the "pauperization" of women and children. The public is invited.

Guests introduced were: Kinney's husband, Lynn, her mother, Clara Schilling, and her pastor, the Rev. Ronald Petersen. Others introduced were Lois Young and Catherine Benzel, both from the Collinsville unit. Ola Jones, a past president, now serving as South-Western chairperson, gave the closing remarks and prayer.

A soup-luncheon was served by the host church women to 50 members. The first board meeting was held Jan. 19, at St. Peter's.

NEWLYWEDS Darcy, played by Molly Ringwald, and Stan, played by Randall Batinkoff, strike an unlikely pose for their prom photo in "For Keeps."

'For Keeps' lacks romance, laughs

I don't mean to sound testy, but the advertising-promotional people at Tri-Star Pictures proclaiming "For Keeps" "a romantic comedy" need their heads checked.

This emotionally untidy pot-boiler in which Molly Ringwald plays one of "20,000 teenage girls—who become pregnant weekly" (as noted in the film credits) is neither a romantic nor a comedy. It is a film for school girls who discover that the only thing they can wear to the senior prom is a maternity dress.

There might be some underestimating teenagers who will find "For Keeps" provocative in that the girl in a mess is a straight "A" student and editor of the school paper impregnated by a lover (Randall Batinkoff) who also is bright and candidate for an architecture scholarship at Cal Tech.

This is Ringwald's first shot at playing an adolescent facing a very adult personal problem, and while her performance is heavily tear-stained, she's well up to the task. She is a good deal more convincing as a child bride with child than Batinkoff, who is attractive but too youthful looking for the part.

"For Keeps" moves along predictably. First we have the fun-bling love-making followed by fretting over how and when to tell both sets of parents.

Things really get hokey as school friends crowd around offering help and bad advice as the couple marries and settles into a trashy apartment that a set decorator makes cute.

The bills mount up alarmingly, and fits of pique thrown by her self-righteous mother and his loud-mouthed father are the order of the day.

Ultimately a flicker of maturity ignites the fires of common sense all around. With the aid of sweet reason and a little bit of luck, Ringwald and Batinkoff find the merry little breezes at their backs, blowing away the clouds hovering over the gloomy purple hills to reveal a shining Mr. Sun and an ending that is almost as sweet as possum pie but not quite.

Kenneth Mars, acting every bit like a psychotic hammer thrower, delivers a decidedly unuseful performance as Batinkoff's redneck father. The only thing he doesn't do to ruin Christmas Eve for everybody is set fire to the tree.

Conchaia Ferrell is Batinkoff's dull but sympathetic mom, and Miriam Flynn, playing Ringwald's divorced mother still smarting at being abandoned by her husband, conveys her loathing in shudders and sighs.

Film critics top movies not most-watched films

Frequently, the most prestigious national awards for movies and actors differ dramatically when compared to the opinions of local moviegoers.

For example, the National Society of Film Critics, a 39-member group of critics from top publications in major markets like New York, Boston, Los Angeles and other cities, chose John Huston's last film, "The Dead," as best film of 1987. Best actor was Steve Martin for "Roxanne" and best actress was Emily Lloyd for "Wish You Were Here," a film that played AMC's Galleria in an exclusive engagement.

The second-place finishers in the acting categories were also choices not likely to be repeated anywhere else. Albert Brooks was runner-up for best actor for "Broadcast News" and Diane Keaton was runner-up for best actress for "Baby Boom."

MOVIE MECCA? Even though there have been some big films shot in the area in the last few years, like "Planes, Trains and Automobiles," "Manhunter," "Escape From New York," we are not even close to the real biggies in garnering revenues from major motion picture producers.

California leads the pack with $6 billion dollars in movie-making revenues in 1987, followed by New York with $2.3 billion and Florida with $1.6 billion. Rounding out the Top 12 in 1987 were North Carolina, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Hawaii, Nevada, Maryland, Louisiana, Texas and Illinois.

TOPS IN 1987 Although it finished just a notch below what was expected, 1987 turned into a great box office year in the movies. The final tallies are in and here are the Top 10 films at the box office, ranked by amount of dollars earned in millions: 1) "The Untouchables," $78.2; 2) "Platoon," $73.9; 3) "Fatal Attraction," $72.5; 4) "The Golden Child," $71.8; 5) "The Untouchables," $71.2; 6) "The Secret of My Success," $67.0; 7) "Stakeout," $65.4; 8) "Lethal Weapon," $65.1; 9) "The Witches of Eastwick," $63.7; 10) "Three Men and a Cradle," $63.5.

Singing group to perform

Victory Pentecostal Church of God, 2601 Cayuga St., will host a singing service at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 3, featuring "The Golden Voices." Each member of the group is more than 65 years old. The Rev. Eddie Linhart, church pastor, welcomes all persons to attend.

55-Alive driving course to be offered at college

The 55-Alive driving course will be held in Room 542 of Granite City Campus, Belleville Area College, 4950 Maryville Road, on Tuesday, Feb. 16, and Wednesday, Feb. 17, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The course is designed to increase the senior driver's concern for the normal age-related physical changes of vision, hearing and reaction time as they affect driving and to increase awareness of appropriate techniques for driving in today's complex traffic patterns.

Cost for the two-day session is $7 per person and may be paid the first day of the class. Persons 55 and older are eligible to take the class.

Most insurance companies will allow a discount on insurance premiums for seniors who have taken this class. For more information or to register, seniors may call the Granite City RSVP office at 876-3223.

A tale of three teams

Random thoughts on our area's three high school basketball teams.

One is shooting for the top. One is heading for the bottom. And the other is poised to go in either direction.

First, the good news. The good times are back in a big way in Madison. The Trojans' 14-4 start is a reminder of the halcyon days when Larry Graham was coach. From 1976-85, the men in green won 10 regionals, seven sectionals and five super-sectionals.

In those five trips to state, they won two state titles (1977 and 1981), finished fourth once, and were beaten in the quarterfinals twice. Although area and statewide polls haven't recognized it yet, since the Trojans are still somewhat in the shadow of the defending state champions across town, Rich Essington's team is ready and willing to take on anybody.

Their losses have come to Venice, Jacksonville and Wellston (Mo.) and Lebanon — four pretty good teams. Many of their wins have been very convincing, while others have been impressive in that a team thought to be as green in experience and the color of its jerseys has hung tough in the fourth quarter and won.

Essington and assistants Keith McFarland and Marcus Spragins weren't exactly full of optimism when the year began. In fact, they sounded like doomsayers. While it might be easy to say they were blowing smoke, one tends to believe they were telling it like they saw it.

Steve Sanders was the only returning player with much varsity basketball experience. Quincy Williams was a star quarterback. Jessie Lebon was a football standout. Clarence Williams and Jason Briggs were career players. But who knew about basketball? Everyone knows now.

The Trojans play at Venice next Tuesday in what could be a preview of the Dupu Regional championship. The Trojans, the Devils and Trojans are the top two seeds.

The news is not nearly so bright in Granite City. It would be nice to say that it can't get much worse now that the Warriors are 3-14 and in last place in a row. But Belleville Althoff is the next opponent on Friday and the Crusaders are a tough team.

Don Deterding won his 400th career game when the Warriors topped Cahokia (the Crusaders are still winless) on Dec. 18. But he's still looking for No. 401. When the Warriors have their toughest in the season, they're rebounding. When they get some bigger people in to rebound, they can't score.

One of the shooters, though, is providing a silver lining in the dark cloud. Sophomore Matt Cook put on what is believed to be a record performance in an otherwise discouraging 74-65 loss to Alton last Friday. He made nine of 15 three-pointers for 27 points. He didn't attempt a two-point field goal all night.

Although the Illinois High School Association doesn't have up-to-date records on the three-point shot yet, it's believed Cook's nine threes are a single-game record for one player. And his 60 percent mark is also remarkable. Cook is a candidate for a pitching spot on the Warriors' baseball team. He can throw strikes from 60 feet, 6 inches the way he can shoot a basketball from long distance, he could make Bob Stegemeyer very happy.

Combined with two bombs from Mike A. Wilkinson and one from Kenny Gray, the Warriors made 12 of 20 three-point attempts in the Alton game. That's 60 percent overall, which equates to 90 percent from two-point territory. And still they lose.

One reason Deterding is so frustrated with the season is that the whole area is down as far as large schools are concerned. If East St. Louis Lincoln doesn't survive the season, it's believed it will be a major surprise.

The Southwestern Conference is a joke. Collinsville is the best, but Deterding feels the Hawks aren't as good as advertised. "This Collinsville team would be in the conference 10 years ago," he said. "And Belleville West has a great record, but they aren't that good."

Deterding must feel like the adventurer in the desert who is captured by his enemy. His arms are tied down and the sadistic villain plants a glass of water in the hero's bound hand. With the water, the villain says, here you will still die of thirst. The Warriors are in that position.

Cardinal farm club gets a Champion manager

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

Keith Champion starts thinking about baseball at this time of year.

Actually, he thinks about baseball year-round, but at this time of year he gets especially anxious. And the 28-year-old Granite City native has a new reason to be anxious for the game this year.

Champion, a 1977 graduate of Granite City South High School, has been named the manager of the Savannah Cardinals, a Class A affiliate of the St. Louis Cardinals in the South Atlantic League.

"After a day like today I'm ready for baseball," Champion said Monday as the temperature hovered around 15. "It will be nice to get to St. Petersburg."

That's where the season starts for everyone in the Cardinal organization. Savannah is one of three Class A teams in the Carolinas system, and the Cardinals now own the team after buying it from Tom Lewis. The Cardinals and Atlanta Braves are the only major league organizations with seven farm clubs.

Champion has been with the Cardinals since 1982, when he was signed as a free agent catcher after a fine career at Southwest Missouri. He played three years in the minor leagues (in Erie, Pa.; Gastonia, N.C.; St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Springfield, Ill.) before becoming a coach in 1985. He coached at Savannah in 1985, at Springfield in 1986 and in Little Rock last year for the Cardinals' Class AA affiliate, the Arkansas Travelers.

"I've been in the organization several years and I had made it known I was trying to get into managing," Champion said. "I talked to the people in St. Louis and they encouraged me. I'm not a pitching specialist so I couldn't really be a pitching coach. And I wanted to call my own shots. So I'm happy to get this opportunity."

Champion will have to wait until the end of spring training to see what players he gets at Savannah.

"Whitey (Herzog) will choose his players and then it just filters down through the system," he said. "I would like to build a team to fit the park in Savannah, but I might not have that luxury. We have a short left-field fence, so I would like a power-hitting right-handed hitter. But we'll just wait and see."

Champion said he thoroughly enjoyed Savannah the year he coached there and is looking forward to getting back.

"I love the area and the warm weather," he said. "The only bad thing is it's in Braves territory. But I think it's the best city in the league."

Grayson Stadium in Savannah seats approximately 8,000. It was formerly the home of a Braves AA team. The team finished "in the middle of the pack" in the South Atlantic League last year, according to Champion. They were also 10th in the 12-team

Trojans slowed by Greyhounds

MADISON — The Trojans went from a team in full stride to a team by the wayside Tuesday.

And figuring who let the air out of the Green Machine's tires was hardly an easy task. The required the major case squad.

Lebanon forward Tony Formoso was the game's MVP, as he left a hefty box score as evidence of his efforts.

Formoso abused the Trojan offense for 24 points, nine rebounds and 12 rebounds as the Greyhounds knocked off Madison 74-67 in a five-game Trojan winning streak.

With the loss, the Trojans fell to 14-4 on the season while Lebanon raised its mark to 9-9.

If Formoso was the star of the Greyhound win, then the play of the Lebanon defense should receive an Oscar nomination for best supporting cast.

The Lebanon defense should receive an Oscar nomination for best supporting cast. The Lebanon defense should receive an Oscar nomination for best supporting cast.

Madison coach Rich Essington said he saw Tuesday's Trojan troubles coming out of the corner of his eye.

"The Warriors were just a little flat tonight," he said. "I felt it before the game. But our bad play had a lot to do with Lebanon's good play. Their 1-2-2

Devils lose again

Although they played much better, the Venice Red Devils dropped a 74-73 decision to Sumner of St. Louis at Vashon High School Tuesday.

Coupled with a 63-49 loss to Red Bud on Saturday, it marks the first time since January 1986 the Devils have lost two games in succession. They are now 11-5 and have lost three of their last four.

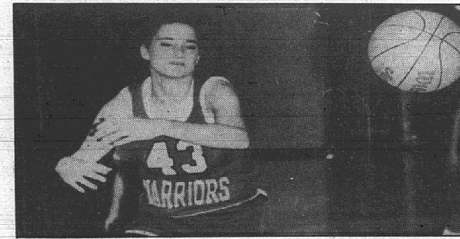

Dale Turner had 20 points and five assists while Daryl Jackson had 16, but the Devils couldn't hang onto a slim fourth-quarter lead. Sumner's Albert Thomas, averaging 24 points a game, had only 25 but Matthew Hill chipped in with 16.

The Devils fell to 13th in the Illinois Class A poll and are 10th in the Journal's small school poll.

JENNIFER CAVANESS had 16 points and 16 rebounds in the Lady Warriors' loss to Belleville East.

Lancers rout Lady Warriors

The Warrior girls basketball team got another taste of what it feels like to play with the big girls on Tuesday.

It's not a good feeling. For the second time this year, the Lady Warriors were crushed by the Belleville East Lancers. It was a little better than a 79-39 loss at home on Dec. 15, but the Lancers still had plenty of margin on Tuesday, winning 84-50.

The Lancers jumped out to a 32-8 lead after one quarter. Warrior coach John Hutchings said his team played better than the score would indicate, but Belleville East's fast break was in top form and Reflye Williams finished off the Warriors enough to score 31 points. Jodie Richardson added 23 points while Vickie Grawitch had nine assists.

Jennifer Cavaness led the Warriors with 16 points and 16 rebounds. Pam Pashak had 15 points, including one three-point. Priscilla Meyenburg was league in attendance, so Champion's team will be working to receive interest among the community.

This is the Cardinals' fifth year there. Formerly, they had a Class A team in Macon, Ga., where a young outfielder named Vince Coleman burned up the base paths.

"We'll play a split season," Champion said. "It's about getting a lot of good players because there are many farm teams in the Cardinal system. But they feel if they can find at least one guy on a team, they're doing all right."

The minor league season starts in April and ends in late August. Champion played high school ball at Granite City South for his father, Conrad "Babe" Champion, an inductee into the Granite City Sports Hall of Fame last year who is now a scout for the Kansas City Royals. Keith's mother, Sue, works for the Granite City Park District.

He earned all-conference, all-Midwest Region and All-American honors at Southwest Missouri before the Cardinals signed him on June 18, 1982. For the next three years Champion got a close-up look at many now-familiar names at Busch Stadium.

"When I broke in at Erie in 1982, Todd Worrell was just starting out," Champion said. "And I was Jim Lindeman's roommate in Springfield. I was also teammates with Danny Cox, Tom Pagnotto, Terry Pendleton and Curt Ford. I think I was with about half the guys with the Cardinals now."

And he would like to be with them again. "I would love to get into the majors in some way," he said. "I guess that's a goal, but I really just want to make a living in baseball. I've been in the game since day one."

Although he's not in the salary class of a Jack Clark or a Bob Horner, Champion isn't complaining. He makes more than enough to get by and he's doing what he loves.

"I once heard Dal Maxvill (another Granite Cityan who hasn't done too badly in the Cardinal organization) say he was paid to play baseball and he couldn't believe it," Champion said. "To be involved with baseball and to get paid for it too is just tremendous."

Here's hoping for a winning summer in Savannah, especially since the team has a champion for a manager.

14-0 spurt keys Stars' win

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Call it "Two Minutes That Shook The World."

It sounds like a Walter Cronkite special. Well, it didn't really shake the world. But it didn't do much for the East Central College Rebels.

The Granite City Campus Stars erupted early in the second half Wednesday, outscoring the Rebels 14-0 in a two-minute blitzkrieg. It changed a seamy battle into a pleasant ride on the merry-go-round for the Stars as they rolled to a 104-82 win.

Charles Claggett had eight points in that two-minute span and Darwin Montana had six. Claggett had a pair of three-pointers and a layup while Montana hit twice from beyond the three-point arc. And defense keyed that brief reign of terror as three straight steals led to the last eight points.

"We've had spurts like that in a lot of games," said Stars coach Terry Collins. "But we haven't always maintained it. Tonight we kept the lead and that's a positive sign. Credit goes to the whole team. We had a couple of good practices this week and it showed there."

"Two different games," East Central coach Ron Tappenev said. He was referring to the work of the officials, which he was far from happy with. He felt the game was being called differently at opposite ends of the court.

But he could have been referring to the game's two halves. The lead changed hands 15 times

In the first 20 minutes, with Don Donagone putting the Rebels (13-9) up 40-38 at the intermission.

"We worked hard in the first half," Collins said. "There were just some basic things we weren't doing. It was nothing to get upset about. We just pointed them out at halftime and we played much smarter in the second half."

The Rebels stretched their lead to three points four times after intermission only to see the Stars close it to one before Claggett (23 points) buried a three-point from the corner to tie the game at 48-48. He did it again the next time down. Then Montana (23 points) made a steal and hit a three-pointer.

A Rebel timeout didn't change things. Claggett got a layup off a James Gordon steal and Montana connected again from long distance after a steal. A 48-45 deficit had been transformed into a 50-48 lead just like that.

"It's not a bad play to pull up for the three-pointer like we did when we had a 3 on 1 break," Collins said. "If we fill the lanes we can get the rebound if we miss."

Gordon was a big factor in the game with 17 points and 10 rebounds. Collins had counted on the redshirt freshman from Indianapolis heavily last year, but he missed much of the season with an injury.

"This was his best game," Collins said. "If teams have to guard him inside, that opens up the outside. And we're tough out there."

The teams traded baskets for the most part after the 14-0 stretch, although East Central closed the gap to seven once.

"They don't have exceptional talent, but they played hard together and I thought they still had a chance to come back," Collins said of the Rebels. "I admire their intensity."

The Stars, meanwhile, are 11-9 overall and 4-3 in the Midwest Community College Athletic Conference. They are tied for second with Forest Park behind unbeaten Three Rivers. They are also 7-0 in games in which they score at least 100 points and 4-9 when they don't.

"We need to solidify our hold on second place," Collins said. "We can't worry about anyone beating Three Rivers."

The Stars play at East Central on Saturday and have a chance to put a streak together.

This is like the Big 10," Collins said. "You can't have a bad night."

A bad night can hurt. But two good minutes can really help.

MMS is hosting hoops regional

Madison Middle School will be hosting the boys eighth grade Illinois Elementary School Association regional basketball tournament Feb. 3-4.

The tournament is similar in format to the regionals in high school. The regional winner will advance to the sectional tournament to be held in Jerseyville the following week.

Bunker Hill and Southwestern play in a preliminary game on Feb. 2 at Southwestern. The winner meets Cahokia in a semifinal game at Madison Middle School at 4 p.m. Feb. 3, with Madison facing Illinois (Jerseyville) in a semifinal game at 5:30 p.m. The championship game is at 6 p.m. Feb. 4.

Admission is $3 for adults and high school students; $1 for kindergarten through eighth grade students and senior citizens; and free for pre-schoolers.

BEAR-FOOT V

Bear Foot V is a 1988 Chevrolet Silverado. It has a 505 cubic inch motor blown injected on alcohol and it produces over 1400 H.P. Bear Foot was the first Chevrolet monster truck. Bear Foot V stands over 12 ft. tall and weighs 15,000 lbs.

Bear Foot's name originated from Fred's two American Black Bears named Sugar and Spice, about 7 years old. The Bears have been growing right along with the truck. Spice, the male bear is 7 ft. tall and weighs about 800 lbs., Sugar, the female bear and 10 1/2 ft. tall and weighs 450 lbs. They have been declawed, decanned and broken, and very gentle.

Bear Foot has been featured on P.M. Magazine three times, also has been on the Knight Rider episode one, four T.V. Pilot — The Steel Collar. It has also been on 15 magazine covers in the past six years and in hundreds of magazine articles.

This is just a few of the Bear Foot's. Bear Foot was the first monster truck to do a music video. The first monster truck to ever climb a school bus. The first monster truck to cross the Mississippi River. We have the first monster truck to do a monster truck. It is little Bear Foot 10. • First monster truck to have a veterinary gear. • First monster truck to have blown injected on alcohol. • First monster truck to do a one hour T.V. pilot.

od to break the game open. Brown then scored two goals in 17 seconds and Kreskovich added a shorthanded goal in the last two minutes on a breakaway.

Roberson leads the team with 23 goals and 27 assists for 50 points and is trying to finish in the top 10 in league scoring. Kreskovich has 23 goals and 21 assists; Brown has 17 goals, 30 assists; and Schnefke has 20 goals and 18 assists after a six-point night.

"It's a credit to those four," Henson said. "We've never had a top 10 scorer before. But they are all going to be up there."

The Warriors had their scoring states on Monday in an 11-2 win over McCluer. Kreskovich had the hat trick and three assists;

Schnefke had two goals and four assists; Roberson had two goals and three assists; Grogan had two goals; Brown had a goal and five assists; and Chris Burns added a single goal.

"Tommy made a nice play to set up Burns for his goal," Henson said. "I appreciated that because it was an unselfish play."

Now the Warriors go for the conference title, which would give them a bye in the first round of the playoffs. If they win their remaining conference games they would be 44-4 in the division in the last four years.

"Hazelwood Central has upset us before, so I would like to get it against them," Henson said. "This team deserves it."

opportunity to win is there, but the Warriors are unable to take advantage.

"The whole area is down this year and we still can't win," Deterville said after the Alton game, shaking his head.

The game with Alton was a graphic example of how far two teams can fall in two years (the Redbirds are 4-10). The Warriors and Redbirds met in two memorable games in 1986 and shared the SWC crown with 9-1 league marks. Both teams shot over 70 percent as Alton won at home 88-80. Then the Warriors came back on a memorable night at Memorial Gymnasium before a screaming packed house for an 88-80 win.

The stars were out in force as Larry Smith and Bobby Collins of Alton, and Tim Hogan, Jamie Hogan, Joe Gray and Tom Taylor of the Warriors showed their stuff.

How the mighty have fallen. In Venice, the defending state Class A champions have reached gut-chance time. They looked awful in a 63-49 loss to Red Bud on Saturday and had to be embarrassed with a sixth-place finish in the Sparta Mid-Winter Classic. They were the top seed.

"I look for the Warriors to Tuesday meant they have lost back-to-back games for the first time since January 1986. Clinton Harris is hinting at changes and some junior varsity players were expected to dress out this week."

"I look for the Warriors to Tuesday meant they have lost back-to-back games for the first time since January 1986. Clinton Harris is hinting at changes and some junior varsity players were expected to dress out this week."

"This team has trouble getting up for games," said assistant coach Harris. "They haven't been up for a game since losing to Southwestern (in the Columbia Holiday Tournament). We have to regain that edge."

Jesse Hall is no longer around to lift the Devils to that higher level. They will have to do it themselves. They are still 11-5 and there is plenty of time before the regionals to right the ship. But the game with the high-flying Trojans next Tuesday (Venice's first home game since before Christmas) will be a big test.
